Our family knows all too well of the devastating affects type 1 diabetes can have on a child and a family. Our precious daughter Sabrina is 16. She was diagnosed with type 1 diabetes when she was 8. Sabrina also has special needs, is developmentally delayed and totally non-verbal, which makes her condition life-threatening. Our local JDRF chapter has helped us through some very difficult times and frankly, we don't know how we could have made it this far without their help.

“Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, JDRF, is a leader in setting the agenda for diabetes research worldwide, and is the largest charitable funder of and advocate for type 1 diabetes research. The mission of JDRF is to find a cure for diabetes and its complications through the support of research.

Type 1 diabetes is an autoimmune disease that strikes children and adults suddenly, and can be fatal. Until a cure is found, people with type 1 diabetes have to test their blood sugar and give themselves insulin injections multiple times or use a pump - each day, every day of their lives. And even with that intensive care, insulin is not a cure for diabetes, nor does it prevent its potential complications, which may include kidney failure, blindness, heart disease, stroke, and amputation. To help improve the lives of people with type 1 diabetes while working toward a cure, one of JDRF's research goals is to support research to develop products that can dramatically improve blood glucose control in people with type 1 diabetes so they can live healthier lives with less risk of developing disease-related complications.

Since its founding in 1970 by parents of children with type 1 diabetes, JDRF has awarded more than $1.5 billion to diabetes research, including more than $107 million last year. More than 80 percent of JDRF's expenditures directly support research and research-related education. ”
